the idea that home is a special place a separate place a place where we can be our true selves is so obvious to us today that we barely pause to think about it but as judith flanders shows in this revealing book home is a relatively new concept when in 1900 dorothy assured the citizens of oz that there is no place like home she was expressing a view that was a culmination of 300 years of economic physical and emotional change in the making of home flanders traces the evolution of the house across northern europe and america from the sixteenth to the early twentieth century and paints a striking picture of how the homes we know today differ from homes through history the transformation of houses into homes she argues was not a private matter but an essential ingredient in the rise of capitalism and the birth of the industrial revolution without home the modern world as we know it would not exist and as flanders charts the development of ordinary household objects from cutlery chairs and curtains to fitted kitchens plumbing and windows she also peels back the myths that surround some of our most basic assumptions including our entire notion of what it is that makes a family as full of fascinating detail as her previous bestsellers the making of home is also a book teeming with original and provocative ideas writer f scott fitzgerald s career itself is a metaphor for the vagaries of book publishing if fitzgerald would have had his way we would today refer to the great gatsby as either gold hatted gatsby trimbalchio in west egg or the high bouncing lover a few years before gatsby fitzgerald had become a literary sensation at the age of 23 helen hooven santmyer a contemporary of fitzgerald s would not have a successful novel published until she was 88 and living in a nursing home in this book the author explores that mysterious place in publishing where art and commerce can either clash mesh or both along the way a wide
